There are ways to access music from YouTube without breaking the rules, such as Google's new YouTube Music service that will likely replace Google Play Music at some point — so we recommend you consider legitimate options first. The methods below work well. However, we must warn you before moving forward: Ripping audio from YouTube is a breach of YouTube's terms of use, which could potentially get you in trouble.

There are dozens of YouTube music-ripping sites out there, though not all are trustworthy.
